ROAD AHEAD

As the company is growing, Shareefa Kumbhar sees her role as more of an enabler than that of task executor.

As an Indian lighting manufacturer, K-Lite is always setting new benchmarks to constantly evolve into a better version of itself. Whether it is product design, product efficiency, or the next generation of connected lighting, the company continues to embrace continuous skill development both professionally and personally. The team is working in collaboration with designers to refine their product offerings both on design and performance levels to position itself in international markets. They are also continuing the next generation development of our smart city solutions and dynamic lighting.

"Ever since I was born with different strengths and develops new ones. I am grateful to be blessed with a certain design acumen, a double dose of common sense and I never give up."
